St. Louis Seems to Have Clear Sailing

NEW YORK (AP) — Francis Tarkenton and his Minnesota scramblers will take a shot at the Green Bay Packers Sunday and the Vikings' quarterback, who seems to make up plays as he goes along, probably will give Vinnie Lombardi a few ner County is dated April 10, a Sunday, which is the deadline for assessing personal property tax under state law.

Faulkner County Assessor J. J. Coker said "sometimes we do" work on Sundays. However, he said he couldn't remember whether he worked that Sunday or not.

Coker said his office continues to assess through July "because people that are not assessed in July can not get their truck licenses unless they are assessed."

At Stuttgart, Johnson promised that there would be no new taxes in his administration. He pledged to veto any tax measure "the minute it hits the governor's desk."

In a taped telecast, Johnson claimed he wasn't saying he had not made mistakes. He said "because as a human being I'm going to make mistakes, but they're mistakes of the head and not of the heart."

He said he would work to improve the state hospital and prison systems, preserve the state's natural resources and better the schools.

Johnson devoted much of his radio, television and personal speaking time to criticizing his Republican opponent.

The Democratic candidate charged that Rockefeller used confidential records while chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission to buy industrial sites so "new industry will have to pay tribute to Rockefeller millions."

He said in a radio interview that he had never criticized Rockefeller because Rockefeller was not a native of Arkansas.

"If I had criticized a man simply because he happened to be born in New York," Johnson said, "I'd be the first to offer my apologies."

"What I did say is that the counterfeit cowboy is underserving, unqualified and unfit to be governor of Arkansas because his interests are still in New York."

gray hairs.

The Vikings' unorthodox style usually troubles the Packers, who scorn the hipper dipper for the old bread and butter style. However, the Packers hold a 9-1 edge over Minnesota in their club series.

St. Louis, Dallas and Cleveland appear to have clear sailing ahead in the NFL and that San Diego-Kansas City game should help clear up the confusion in the AFL's West.

The picks for this Sunday's pro games: NFL Cleveland 31, Pittsburgh 14- Browns have won four straight and Bill Austin's Steelers have dropped five in a row, including 41-10 drubbing by Cleveland Oct. 8.

Dallas 35, Philadelphia 13- Wolves snapping at Eagles despite 4-4 record, Cowboys lead league in scoring and are second in defense with Mel Renfro back at safety.

Los Angeles 23, San Francisco 17- This will be rugged. The 49ers put Bill Munson out for the season in this game last year, Rams won first meeting 34-3 on four interceptions and fumble but have lost three straight.

Archives Gets Report on JFK Slaying

By STEPHEN M. AUG
WASHINGTON (AP) — The mass of evidence that led the Warren Commission to decide Lee Harvey Oswald killed President John F. Kennedy lies under tight security at the National Archives.

Included in the hundreds of exhibits are the Italian-made 6.5 millimeter Mannlicher-Carcano rifle that the commission said was the death weapon, the suit Kennedy wore when he was shot and 65 photographs and X-rays taken in connection with the Kennedy autopsy.

The controversial photographs never were viewed by the commission but two pathologists who performed the autopsy said the pictures merely back up their testimony before the commission.

Much of the evidence is destined to lie unseen behind locked doors in one of the few maximum security chambers in the archives' 196 concrete and steel stack areas.

The autopsy photographs could remain unviewed by anyone except officials government investigating agencies for many years under the agreement between the government and the Kennedy family which provided for acquisition of the pictures.

Most of the assassination evidence has been at the archives for about two years, since the Warren Commission finished with it. Technically, however, it belonged to the Justice Department until Tuesday.

Although officials would not disclose the precise location of the Kennedy material, they indicated it is well protected. Unauthorized entry to any of these rooms — or even to the less secure stacks — is automatically known to the archives' guard force.

The National Archives, the repository of all official documents of U.S. history, is best known for its perpetual display of the original Declaration of Independence, Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Pressman Key to Election in Maryland

By HERB THOMPSON
BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The outcome of Maryland's gubernatorial election Nov. 8 may very well hinge on how strongly Hyman A. Pressman runs.

Pressman, Baltimore's colorful city comptroller, is a former Democrat running as an independent in the three-way race that he attracted national attention.

He could tip the victory to either Republican Spiro T. Agnew or Democrat George P. Mahoney. Or he could, possibly, score a major surprise and win.

The effect of Pressman's candidacy is as impossible to gauge as the open occupancy issue, which contributed to Mahoney's victory in the primary and which is expected to remain a fairs." Hanson repeated that the firm didn't believe the documents could have been misplaced. They were last used by accountants in late September, Hanson said.

He said they were with other Rockefeller records that occupies about three feet of storage space in the firm's file room. He said the room is not locked, although the office is.

Hanson said anyone could have leafed through Rockefeller's files and found the two missing documents without trouble. He said they contained 40 to 50 pages.

Rockefeller has been a client of the company since 1961, when it opened its Little Rock office after merging with the R. A. Lile firm. R. A. Lile had handled Rockefeller's account previously.

Hanson, who came to Little Rock to oversee the investigation, said he planned to return to New York today.

He repeated an earlier statement by another company spokesman that figures contained in a political advertisement Monday in the Jonesboro Evening Sun could have come only from the Internal Revenue Service, the Arkansas Revenue Department or Rockefeller's financial files.

factor in the general election.

Pressman, 52, a political maverick, was elected city comptroller three years ago on a Republican fusion ticket after having lost the nomination in the Democratic primary.

His chief strength appears to be in the Baltimore area, but he also is well-known in other sections for the taxpayer suits he has filed over the years against city and state officials and for his advocacy of a state-operated lottery.

While political observers speculate on which of the other candidates the red-haired Baltimore lawyer will hurt more, Pressman confidently predicts he will be the winner.

Mahoney, 64, a Baltimore County paving contractor, is making his fourth try for the governorship after six unsuccessful races for governor or U.S. senator. He was the surprise winner of a Democratic primary in which he stressed his opposition to open housing legislation with the slogan, "Your home is your castle — protect it."

Agnew, 47, a lawyer and head of Baltimore County's government, said at a recent political gathering that his campaign stressing such state problems as tax reform, education, rapid transit and water pollution "has not caught fire" but he remained hopeful it might do so.

Pressman thinks his own candidacy will rob Agnew of any widespread Democratic support, and that he will also take away voters from Mahoney in working-class areas where they have both run well.

A Note of Appreciation And Reassurance To the People of Arkansas

I want to express my deep appreciation to the fine people of Arkansas for their continuing faith in me, and for their generosity in supporting me in the Democratic Primary Runoff for the governorship of this great state.

I am gratified for your trust, and I want to reassure you that Jim Johnson will continue to stand, as he has in the past, for these policies and principles:

- (1) The free exercise and expression of our Christian faith in public and in private.
- (2) The courageous protection of our property rights, to the end that every owner may sell or rent his house or land to whom he pleases, free from governmental coercion or federal interference.
- (3) Since the first obligation of government is the maintenance of law and order, I guarantee the rights and dignity of the private citizen against the illegal trespass upon his premises or person by organized or paid demonstrators of any kind.
- (4) I am unalterably opposed to the policy of Lyndon B. Johnson in his needless sacrifice of thousands of American boys in Robert Strange McNamara's no-win war in Vietnam. Let's win or get out!
- (5) Uppermost in my heart and mind is the continued development and progress of Arkansas, and I pledge that with your help we will accelerate the fantastic potential growth of our great state.

Now, we face a great challenge in November. We must solidify our forces and redouble our efforts to insure victory and establish these policies and principles into our society. With a deep feeling of humility, I will appreciate your continued support and your vote.

Dennis Days Have 10th Child

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Dennis Day received congratulations from Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., on the birth of his 10th child last week. Kennedy, whose wife expects her 10th child early next year, telegraphed Day in Los Angeles: "Congratulations on your 10th. In 1968 we will challenge you for the world's family football championship."

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

TEN YEARS WITH THE WRONG MAN

Dear Helen: I started going with Tom when I was 22. Two years later he gave me a lovely expensive engagement ring. We were supposed to get married the next year, but we never got around to setting the date. Each year I revise my list of wedding guests. That's about as far as it has gone, and I am now 32.

He is a good man, with a good job, but he likes to gamble. Twice he had me put the ring in a box to raise money for his debts. The last time I paid the pawnshop myself, out of savings.

After waiting 10 years, I've about given up, and I suppose he has too. I haven't seen him in four months. Should I send the ring back, or keep it resting in its little velvet case so I can look at it as I grow older and say, "Well, I was almost married, anyway?"—ONCE A GO GIRL

Dear Go Go: I'd suggest you write Tom a registered letter breaking the engagement and telling him that if he doesn't repay you for the pawn ticket you'll consider the ring yours to sell as you see fit. (Or perhaps you could hock it and send him the bill.)

Take the proceeds and buy yourself a cruise or a new wardrobe—something wild and zippy! And then—go, woman, go—H.

Dear Helen: We have two children and have lived in a very nice trailer court for three years. Our neighbors have children also—no problem.

Last week we got a notice from the court owners saying they want to convert it eventually to an adults-only, or at least "no small children" park. They added that they would evict no one who already had children, but the cutoff date for adding more to your family (and being able to stay) is March 15.

Helen, our new baby is expected on April 15! Another neighbor is suppose to have her first baby the middle of February, so she's okay.

I talked to the owners and they said, "Rules are rules, sorry." We love our trailer house and don't want to give it up, but there are no other trailer courts within 25 miles of our area, and my husband can't drive 50 miles to and from gork.

Isn't there some legal way we can get an extension on our eviction? Lorraine

Dear Lorraine: I consulted a lawyer who doesn't give you much hope. The owners have no doubt made sure their ruling is legal; only a doctor's miscalculation or premature birth can beat it.

With five in the family, isn't it time you traded your trailer in on a house?—H.

Dear Helen: My neighbor's children and mine are always playing together. All of them are normally well-behaved girls, all under seven. There are the usual small squabbles, but I let them settle things between themselves and don't take sides. I don't like to scold or boss other people's children.

But my neighbor has taken it upon herself to scold mine whenever the slightest argument develops. She has told my oldest daughter never to play in her yard again, yet she sends HER kids over here to play. I've have talked this over and she agrees it is best to leave them alone unless it's a big fight. Yet she goes right back to scolding mine again, though sometimes hers are to blame.

I don't want a feud, but my mother resents it when her children are bawled out without just cause. What should I do? UPSET

Dear Upset: You can get your point across without feuding. Tell your neighbor over coffee that you've noticed the children's quarreling bothers her and you think it's best to separate them for a while. If she agrees, then both families should find new playmates and stay out of each others' yards. Repeat, BOTH!

If she doesn't agree, you can probably hammer out a peace pact. . . . Well anyway, a way to truce.—H.

47,000 to See Porker, Rice Game

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Eighth-ranked Arkansas seeks its 29th victory in its last 30 games here Saturday when the Porkers collide with Rice, a young team that has made little misfortune for highly regarded opposition.

A capacity crowd of 47,000 is expected to jam War Memorial Stadium for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff, the first day game here since 1962 when Arkansas trimmed Southern Methodist 9-7.

Coach Jess Neely, in his final season at Rice, brings his Owls to town with an unimpressive 1-5 record, but that's come against a killer schedule.

The only Rice triumph was a 17-15 victory over Louisiana State, before the Tigers lost last week's game with Southern Methodist.

Third-ranked UCLA had to score a touchdown and field goal in the closing minutes to nudge the Owls 27-24 and SMU scored in the final 10 seconds to log a 28-24 triumph.

Meanwhile, Arkansas blistered Texas A&M 34-0 last week, scoring the highest grades ever for a Frank Broyles-coached team. The triumph shoved the Porkers back into the thick of the Southwest Conference title chase.

Arkansas could gain no worse than a tie for its third straight title by whipping Rice, SMU and Texas Tech in its final three games.

Razorback hopes against the Owls will fall on a stout defense that has shut out two straight foes and leads the nation in defense against scoring, plus a new look offense headed by quarterback Jon Brittenum.

A&M got a look at Arkansas operating from the double wing, the first time the Porkers have come out of their "I" formation in 2½ years.

Robby Shelton, Rice's daring sophomore quarterback, is the key to the Owls' success. Shelton, who weighs only 165 pounds, has accounted for 612 yards total offense this season, 526 on the ground and 286 in the air.

The Owls hold a decisive advantage in the series, 25-14-2, but Arkansas leads 10-9 in games played in the state and 3-1 in games played in Little Rock.

Neely is 15-11 against the Porkers, but has won only twice in eight meetings with Broyles' teams.

Charles F. Kettering invented the self-starter for automobiles.

BUFFALO'S Butch Byrd, No. 42, rates as one of the best defensive backs in the AFL, but even the Bills don't seem to realize who he is. Seems the seamstress must have goofed when she stitched "Byrd" on the back of Byrd's jersey.

Razorback Player Still Unconscious

HOUSTON (AP)—Claude Smith, University of Arkansas football player who underwent emergency brain surgery last Sunday, remained unconscious and in critical condition today but his wife said she believed he was improving.

"I'm encouraged," said Mrs. Charlene Smith. "He's starting to move his arms and eyebrows. I think he is going to pull out of it."

Smith, a defensive tackle, collapsed in the dressing room at College Station Saturday night after the Texas A&M-Arkansas game.

A cranial blood clot had kept him out of action last season. In last weekend's operation doctors at Methodist Hospital again removed such a clot.

"I was apprehensive but I let him return to football," Mrs. Smith said. "He wanted to play. Football is in his blood. The doctors gave their approval."

She said doctors who performed the first operation told her a clot in the same spot was highly improbable.

Against Texas A&M, he participated in no more than 10 plays. Arkansas coaches said game films show no blow on the head that could have caused the injury.

Bobcats to Warren in District Go

By LARRY DON WRIGHT
Hope Star Sports Writer

The Hope Bobcats will close out their 4AA grid schedule tonight when they tangle with the always rough Warren Lumberjacks in what promises to be a fight-to-the-end affair at Warren.

Both teams have won three district games as the Cats carry a 3-4 conference record while Warren protects a 3-2 mark. But the story is that the team which changes that initial digit to four tonight can still entertain hopes of finishing as high as second in the district race.

Warren will have a serious chance at second position no matter the outcome of tonight's contest, but for the Bobcats it's do or die.

A win for the Bobcats tonight would even their conference performance record up at 4-4. Any team in the district who can boast a better mark other than Crossett still has a serious chance of losing it before the season is over. Crossett has first place pretty well sewed up for the second consecutive year.

The Lumberjacks have been among the AA ranks for only two years. Prior to the 1964 season they were a formidable Class A powerhouse. However in two seasons the Lumberjacks have proven their worthiness of the new classification. In 1964 they lost the 4AA Championship to the Bobcats by a half game. Then last season Warren pulled up a very respectable fourth place in the region standings.

Two years ago the Hope-Warren game served as one of the main deciding factors in determining the district champion. The 7-7 outcome of the game was largely attributed to weather conditions which kept the playing field completely soaked throughout the contest.

The Lumberjacks took the lead in the two year series last year, however by turning back the Cats, 22-7, in Hammons Stadium.

Although the district championship is not riding on tonight's results, there is a lot of pride involved. Both teams have their work cut out since they'll be running up against comparable strength and ability tonight.

The Bobcats ended a mid season slump last week by winning their first decision since early in the year, a 20-7 win over Camden.

The Cats will have to turn in an equally impressive showing tonight in order to overcome the Jacks.

The opening kickoff is set for 7:30 at Warren.

Knicks Beat Warriors in Cage Play

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Van Arsdale held Rick Barry to two points — if you don't count his concession — and in so doing enabled the New York Knickerbockers to beat the San Francisco Warriors.

"You concede him 30 points and try to keep him from getting 50 or 60," Van Arsdale said Thursday night after spending most of a National Basketball Association game guarding Barry.

Barry, the NBA's Rookie of the Year last season and the current scoring leader, scored 32 points but was limited by Van Arsdale to just one in the third period when the Knicks outscored the Warriors 36-19 en route to a 123-108 victory.

The 6-foot-5 Van Arsdale, who draws the assignment of guarding the opposition's top-scoring forward, also finds time to play offense. He scored 25 points and had four assists.

In other NBA action, Boston beat Chicago 137-108 before the Knicks-Warriors game at Madison Square Garden, and Philadelphia topped St. Louis 120-108 in Pittsburgh.

Wilt Chamberlain scored only 14 points but grabbed 24 rebounds and blocked several shots as Philadelphia won its 17th straight regular season game and tied an NBA record. The first 11 victories in the string came at the end of last season.

Chet Walker made up for Chamberlain's lack of scoring by getting 36, Zelmo Beaty netted 32 for St. Louis.

Led by Larry Siegfried, Boston outscored Chicago 18-8 in the late stages of the first quarter for a 35-23 lead and the start of a rout.

Bailey Howell led Boston with 21 points. Guy Rodgers scored 16 for Chicago.

Coach Not Secure About Leaving Town

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

There will be a new lock on Sid Gillman's garage door, but the San Diego Chargers coach is still not very secure about having to leave town.

After a successful week at home, which included a 24-17 victory over Denver, the Chargers must hit the road — where they have not fared especially well of late — to play Kansas City in a game for the lead of the AFL's Western Division.

In their last road trip, the Chargers dropped games to New York and Boston and tied Buffalo. Then when they returned home, Gillman was greeted by an open garage and the loss of all his tools.

"Our offensive game plans were right next to the tools," Sid said, "and they weren't even touched."

The Chiefs lead the division at the moment, but the Chargers are just a half-game behind and a victory would give them the lead. The game matches the two top passers in the league, John Hadl of the Chargers and Len Dawson of the Chiefs.

In the NFL, Dallas travels to Philadelphia, where the Eagles will try to avenge the 56-7 defeat the Cowboys administered in Dallas a few weeks back. Dallas quarterback Don Meredith, who leads the league with 19 touchdowns passes, accounted for five of them against the Eagles.

The Western Division leader, Green Bay, hosts Minnesota, whose quarterback, Fran Tarkenton, is about the hottest player in the league at the moment. He has hit on almost 75 per cent of his passes in the last three games for 836 yards and seven touchdowns.

Back in the AFL, Boston, leading the Eastern Division, faces Denver. Boston's Jim Nance had his best game last week gaining 208 yards on a record 38 carries.

Buffalo, a half-game back in the Eastern Division, is at Miami, which has won two straight after losing its first five. Miami's Cookie Gilchrist faces his former teammates for the first time.

Houston, 3-5, is at Oakland, 4-4, where the Oilers' George Blanda will test his passes against the best passdefense in the league. Houston beat the Raiders 3 in their first meeting of the season.

The NFL Eastern Division leading St. Louis Cardinals are in New York where the Giants will get another chance at the victory that just eluded them the last time the clubs played. A late pass from Charley Johnson to Billy Gambrell gave the Cards the victory then.

Cleveland, riding a four-game winning streak, is at Pittsburgh for a rematch with the club the Browns beat 41-10 early in October. The Steelers have lost five in a row.

Baltimore, in second place in the West, plays Washington at home. The Colts are working on a victory streak of three games and the Redskins have won five

Howell Gets to Make a Couple Goals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Normally, Harry Howell spends his time trying to keep would-be scorers away from the New York Ranger goal.

And normally, the Rangers consider it a successful evening if they can get one more goal than the opposition.

So on Thursday night, when the Rangers won a rare laugher, 7-1 over Boston, it seemed only fitting that Harry Howell should push in a couple of goals of his own.

The veteran Ranger defenseman scored only four goals all last year and just two the season before that. Clearly, he is expected to do other things.

And so are the Rangers. It was only their second victory of the young season.

In the only other NHL game, Detroit tied Toronto 2-2 on a late goal by Murray Hall. Ron Ellis and Eddie Shack scored in the second period for the Maple Leafs after Detroit had gone ahead 1-0 on a goal by Floyd Smith.

of their last six.

Detroit in the cellar in the West with six losses in seven games, is at Chicago where it will face one of the two teams it has beaten this year. But Rudy Bukich, Gale Sayers and Co. will be trying to show that Detroit's 14-3 victory in the opener was all a mistake.

Los Angeles, 4-4, is at San Francisco, 3-3-1, seeking to repeat its 34-3 victory over the 49ers in September. San Francisco has won three of its last four and the Rams, after winning four of their first five, have dropped three straight.

Hapless Pitt Headed for Notre Dame

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that Michigan State has used 500 shovels to dig Spartan Stadium out of the snow, Pitt and Iowa might like to use them to dig out of the mess they're headed for.

Hapless Pitt is headed for Notre Dame, the nation's top-ranked college football team, Saturday while almost-as-hapless Iowa plows into the snow-bound Spartans, the No. 2 team.

Before the unbeaten Spartans could go after their eighth victory, though, about a foot of snow had to be cleared from the field.

School officials gathered some 500 shovels, then called for volunteers from the student body to use them and help clear the snow away. The students started shoveling Thursday afternoon and worked through the night to get the field ready for the game.

Officials estimated that the snow removal job could cost $35,000.

A loss for either the Irish or the Spartans would be more expensive — from a prestige point of view — but their opponents aren't expected to inflict such damage.

No matter what Jim Lynch says, Lynch is a rugged Notre Dame linebacker and he was saying Thursday how the Irish weren't taking the Panthers lightly even though the Irish won last year's contest 60-13.

"Our players are taking Pittsburgh seriously," Lynch said. In winning one game and losing six, the Panthers have been outscored on the average of 23-10.

At the same time the Irish, 6-0, have scored less than 30 points in only one game while posting three shutouts and limiting their opponents to a total of 28 points.

Iowa is in about the same amount of trouble. The Hawkeyes, 2-5, have been blanked three times while the Spartans have outscored their opponent 27-9.

Six other teams also will be out to continue their unbeaten streaks.

UCLA, ranked No. 3, visits Washington, fourth-ranked Alabama takes on Louisiana State at Birmingham, No. 5 Georgia Tech hosts Virginia, sixth-ranked Nebraska is at Kansas, Florida, No. 7, battles Georgia at Jacksonville and unranked Harvard is at Princeton.

The Florida-Georgia battle could be the most interesting. Those two teams, along with Alabama, are tied for first place in the Southeastern Conference with 4-0 records.

Georgia's major problem, of course, is stopping Steve Spurrier, who wins games in the final minutes with his passing and his kicking.

Other games include Syracuse at Penn State, George Washington at Army, Duke at Navy, Illinois at Michigan, Purdue at Wisconsin, Indiana at Ohio State, Miami, Fla., at Tulane, Vanderbilt at Kentucky, Maryland at North Carolina State, Minnesota at Northwestern and North Carolina at Clemson.

Also on the schedule are Texas at Baylor, Tulsa at Houston, Colorado at Missouri, Kansas State at Oklahoma, Texas A&M at Southern Methodist, Wyoming at Wichita State, Air Force at Stanford, Rice and Arkansas at Little Rock, California at Southern California and Chattanooga at Tennessee.

SMU Goes Against the Aggies

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern Methodist tries to insure a winning record for the first time in seven years Saturday when the Mustangs, leading the Southwest Conference football race, clash with Texas A&M — all the time keeping an ear cocked on what is happening at Little Rock.

It is up there in the Ozarks that the other big game of the day is being played. Arkansas meets lowly Rice, needing to win to stay in the race and make next week's game with Southern Methodist a showdown for the championship.

Southern Methodist will be playing the Aggies in the Cotton Bowl before some 55,000 fans and going after its sixth victory of the season, while also remaining the only undefeated team left in the conference campaign.

A sixth triumph would insure a winning season because there would be only three left to play. The last time the Methodist won more than they lost was 1956 when the record was 5-4-1.

Since then it has been to the depths and stayed just below a winning record in other years.

Texas A&M, despite its loss to Arkansas last week, still is a dangerous hazard to SMU's chances. The Aggies, too, must win or fade from title consideration. And they are angry because Arkansas stopped a three-game winning streak that had appeared likely to land them in the throne room.

The Methodists are 7½ point favorites over the Aggies on the basis of a better defense.

Arkansas is given a bulge of 18 points over Rice although the Owls have been tremendous of offense while winning only one game out of six.

WATCH THOSE DOORS

BOSTON (AP)—When discussing means of getting a team "up for a game," Bill Russell, new player-coach of the Boston Celtics, recalls the time he took over the team in Los Angeles in the absence of Red Auerbach. "I really gave it to the team," says Russell. "and they were charged up. I could see the players tensing up just waiting to run through the dressing room door. 'When I finished I said 'OK, now go out and get them.' 'They jumped up ready to take the door off the hinges. 'Wouldn't you know it, the door was locked.'"

Reasons You Should Vote AGAINST INITIATED ACT NO. 1

(Forced School Consolidation)

Gov. Faubus Says:

"Quality is more important than size . . . with increasingly better high-ways and more population, school districts that are small now might grow enough that they would not be consolidated."

—Arkansas Democrat, August 13, 1966

Jim Johnson Says:

"I am opposed to consolidation of school districts, based upon arbitrary decisions that would take from the people any of their inherent rights . . . forced consolidation for the sake of consolidation, both in PRINCIPLE and in PRACTICE, is WRONG."—Letter,

July 12, 1966

Rockefeller Says:

"You can assume I will vote against it. I don't like the magic number of 400."

—Arkansas Gazette, October 22, 1966

The State Department of Education and the State Board of Education HAVE NOT ENDORSED Initiated Act No. 1

It violates these basic democratic principles:

1. It would centralize education so that a few people would control all education in the State.

2. It does not allow the people affected to decide for themselves on the issue of consolidation. This proposal would not improve education, but would cause a state-wide TAX INCREASE and force undue hardships on children in both RURAL and URBAN areas

Mrs. Wallace Is Solid Favorite

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)

Opinion polls have established the blonde, 40-year-old Lurleen Wallace as a solid favorite to defeat two male opponents Nov. 8.

The Republican candidate, Congressman James D. Martin, has conceded that Mrs. Wallace is leading, but contends the margin is narrowing. He is counting heavily on what he calls a sizable bloc of uncommitted voters.

An autogyro crash in a Birmingham shopping center sent the other contender, Dr. Carl Robinson, to a hospital and weakened his already shaky chances. Robinson, who practices both medicine and law, lists himself as a Democrat but is running as an Independent.

If Mrs. Wallace wins, she will be the first woman governor in Alabama's 147-year history and the third in the United States. Until now, only Miriam (Ma) Ferguson in Texas and Nellie Tayloe Ross in Wyoming have held that office.

Martin, if victorious, would be Alabama's first Republican governor since Reconstruction.

Mrs. Wallace has devoted much of her campaign oratory to denouncing what she calls a trend toward centralized government. Unless this trend is checked, she contends, it will "destroy the free enterprise system and individual liberty and freedom."

The governor, who surprised critics with his showing in the Democratic presidential preferential primaries in Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland two years ago, has said only that he "just might" run for president in 1968.

But he has told campaign crowds that unless the two major parties "give up someone we can vote for, I'm going to raise sand from Maine to California."

And then, systematically, he has eliminated as unacceptable every Democrat or Republican who has been mentioned as a potential candidate.

Wallace withdrew in 1964 to avoid splitting the conservative vote. When former Sen. Barry Goldwater flew to Alabama to help Republican candidates in this year's election, the governor said the 1964 GOP presidential nominee had "no business trying to tell the people of Alabama how to vote."

"He carried five states after I withdrew," says Wallace. "If I had stayed in the race, he would have carried only one."

The project has been organized by George Mueller, who plans a tour of repertory including legitimate drama, vaudeville, burlesque and satirical absurd.

No bidding system can be perfect because there is no way to give a complete picture of every hand. There was no way for South to know that he held a useless queen of diamonds and when he bid four spades he really expected to have a sure thing.

When he saw the dummy he realized that the hand was far from a cinch. There were two heart losers and two probable club losers.

East took his ace of hearts and returned the ten. West won with the jack and shifted to the four of diamonds. South drew trumps, ruffed out his last heart and noted that West produced the king. Then he cashed the last diamond and was ready to attack the club suit.

If his opponents had never bid, South's correct play would be to play ace and a small club. This play would be a winner if either defender held the king-queen of clubs doubleton, if East held the singleton or doubleton king or queen, if West held the doubleton king-ten or queen-ten or if West held king-small or queen-small and forgot to drop his honor under the ace.

South knew that these combinations were most unlikely because East had opened the bidding and needed both the king and queen of clubs for his opening bid. This left South with another play. He led his four of clubs and played dummy's nine. West won the trick and had no safe return. If he led a red card South would ruff in dummy and discard his five of clubs. If he led a club South would let it ride around to his jack.

If you're tired of trucks that ride like trucks, try a truck that rides like a car.

'67 FORD F-100 RANGER PICKUP

Country roads, new '67 Ford Trucks travel with carlike smoothness. Ford's exclusive Twin-I-Beam front suspension does the trick.

You'd never believe a truck so tough could have such gentle ways. Maybe that's why so many Ford Country folks often leave their cars home and take the truck on fun-trips. We've added to the fun for '67 with a new Ranger luxury model. Sit in the cab and you'll think you're in a car.

Test-drive a Ford Pickup at your Ford Dealer's. Even if you've never enjoyed driving a truck, just go along for the ride!

THE TRUTH ABOUT FORCED SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION Initiated Act No. 1

In the November General Election the State of Arkansas is faced with a proposal that would DESTROY APPROXIMATELY ONE-THIRD OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICTS IN THE STATE.

IT IS UNFAIR The people of the local school districts should have the final voice as to where their children attend school.

YOU WILL PAY MORE TAXES if this act is passed. It will be very expensive because more new buildings will have to be constructed, yet at the same time, existing buildings and facilities which are already paid for, will be left vacant.

MANY COMMUNITIES AND CHILDREN WILL LOSE THEIR SCHOOLS if Act 1 Passes. All school districts with less than 400 students will automatically be dissolved. We believe that our children receive an equal education and more personal attention than they would in a large over-crowded school.

Please help us save our school and VOTE AGAINST INITIATED ACT NO. 1 on November 8th.

An 'Actor' Is Born
---Behind the Bar!

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

The big, rough cowboy waved his rifle menacingly.

"Hand it over," the bartender said to him.

"Who's going to make me?" said the cowboy, with a sneer.

"Just obeying orders, mister," the bartender said. "You gotta check it."

The bartender grabbed the rifle, but the cowboy pulled it away. This was the start of a saloon brawl which ended when Dean Martin, the law in the town, beat the cowboy senseless.

This is a scene in "Rough Night in Jericho." It isn't remarkable; I've seen dozens like it. The only thing that made this different is that I was seeing it from the inside.

I was playing the bartender.

I had reported at Universal with the dew on my face. I was made up and given a bartender's costume. It was already 8:30 a.m. I walked down to the set and reported to assistant director Joe Boston and the director, Arnold Laven.

Laven told me about the scene and gave me my lines. Then I climbed over the bar and took my position. Taped marks on the floor indicated where I had to put my feet.

We ran through the scene once. The bar was full of extras, great characters of the old West. Standing across from me with the rifle was Med Flory. Fortunately, I knew him—Med is big and rugged and handsome and, besides being an actor, is a great jazz saxophone player.

"I think Dick should have some sideburns," Laven said. And the whole company waited while make-up man Lynn Reynolds added the sideburns.

We did the scene six or seven times. I didn't flub my lines, but once I grabbed the rifle in the wrong place. Everything is planned out carefully, even to which hand I had to use to place on which spot on the rifle.

The next action was a shot—Flory trying to shoot Martin, who grabbed his hand just in time. A blank was used, of course.

Warren Vanders, also in the scene, cautioned me to turn away from the shot. He said sometimes sparks from a blank can burn you. Flory said the same thing. I turned away, as much as I dared.

Afterwards, George Peppard came over and said I was very professional. He smiled when he said it.

Over the long day, whenever there was a break, we actors would sit around and talk. Dean Martin admitted he was tired.

"I have to start another picture, 'Band of Gold,' five days after I finish this one," he said. "That will make five straight pictures for me, plus the TV show. Next year, I'm only going to make one. Of course, I've said that before."

He's playing the heavy in this film, his first crack at a villainous role. He says it's a challenge, and there aren't many challenges left for him.

Vanders is the only actor ever to win a Golden Gloves title—he was Warren Vandershott when he won in '54. But he quit fighting.

"I realized one day," he says, "and the realization hit me like a left jab, that I enjoyed getting into the ring more than I enjoyed the actual fight. I would pick out a pretty girl in the crowd and play to her. I realized I was just a ham—and I figured that for hams, acting is safer than fighting."

We worked until almost six in the evening. By then, we were all tired. "Rough Night in Jericho" had been a rough day at Universal City.

Pictures of a New Dam and a Unique Hotel

Here are a couple of photographs that for space reasons were omitted from the editor's picture-page report on the War Eagle Homecraft Fair and Eureka Springs Oct. 22-24. Above is a view looking northward across Beaver Dam, just outside Eureka Springs.

Dramatic touch is given photo by the deep cut which accommodates highway as it leaves the dam. Beaver Lake, newest reservoir before the completion of our own Millwood Dam, runs all the way from Eureka to Rogers, a sizeable chunk of Ozark geography.

Years ago the late Robert Ripley in his cartoon "Believe It or Not" publicized the Basin Park Hotel in downtown Eureka Springs as "unique because it's a multi-storied hotel with every story on the ground." Your editor and his companion, L. Carter Johnson of Hope, booked themselves into the Basin Park on last month's Ozark tour just to Above is our photograph of the hotel's back-side. On the right is the hotel's rear wall, on the left a mountainside. Technically the hotel's claim is true...but your editor would hate to have to make a night-time jump across that gap in the top-floor catwalk to the mountain!

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Toward the end of "The Canterville Ghost" on ABC Wednesday night, Natalie Schafer, playing an American woman in a haunted English manor house, announced "I'll sit here quietly until six o'clock and then I'm going to start screaming." By a remarkable coincidence, this reviewer was having a similar thought at that moment, except that scream time was set for the end of the program.

This most recent effort of the "Stage 67" series was another disappointment — a musical comedy based on a satire by Oscar Wilde. In the course of adaptation it was modernized to a point where the satire was lost and broad comedy inserted.

Wilde probably had some fun with the idea of a 17th century British ghost growing frustrated when he encountered a family of casual Americans that just didn't scare.

But in this version, the Americans acted like blind idiots as the ghost floated around.

Sir Michael Redgrave as the robust, approachable ghost, drifted around occasionally trying to frighten the lessees of his home, and occasionally breaking into song.

The gloomy interior sets were impressive. Performers like Miss Schafer, Redgrave and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. tried hard but seemed ill at ease. Nobody could wring much life or humor from the awkward script.

Earlier NBC presented numbers from the Shipstads and Johnson ice follies. It was a tuneful, colorful hour as skates flashed and performers whirled.

Vietnamese Impressed by Doctors

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Few Americans have impressed Viet Nam's people more than the "bac si".

That is roughly the equivalent for the doctor who carries a weapon the Viet Cong does not possess — medicine that cures, and serums that prevent disease.

Medical aid teams working under the U.S. Agency for International Development program travel to remote hamlets often in areas where no other foreign civilian can go safely.

Not one member of a U.S. AID medical team has been lost to Communist action. Once in a while, they undergo stray fire, but the Viet Cong seem to know better than to deny the villagers what the "bac si" brings.

The medical teams are distinguished by their red berets. Villagers in areas where they have worked know them from a distance, often tip them off in advance if an area is dangerous.

Medical teams work in all four corps areas of South Viet Nam. They are responsible for getting down into the village in support of the Health Ministry's civic action program. The effort is called MEDCAP for Medical Civilian Civic Action Program.

As with every other effort in South Viet Nam, it sometimes encounters political difficulties.

There is a reliable report, for example, that the minister of health has threatened to resign unless he gets better support for the program from the military government.

Medical team members say they think the minister of health, Dr. Tran Van Luy, is a capable and dedicated administrator.

An ambitious health plan has been outlined in the pacification program for Viet Nam, but as with almost everything else, what is on paper seldom jibes with what goes on.

In 10 years, 13,000 health stations have been stocked with American medicine. Hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese have been inoculated against a variety of diseases. Medical teams from 16 nations treat patients by the thousands. Medical schools are being built.

The over-all program is under the command of Maj. Gen. James Humphrey, who achieved fame here by conducting a successful operation to extract a live grenade from the back of a Vietnamese. He is on loan to the U.S. AID program.

Wheeling it

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A coed rolled her new Porsche 911 into the service station and hopped out, telling the attendant: "Something's wrong with my car. Could you fix it?"

"Well, miss," the guy said, smiling, "roughly where do you suppose the trouble is — the engine, the transmission or is something wrong with the electrical system?"

"All I know is that it doesn't run right," she answered. "Could you fix it and I'll be back to pick it up tonight?"

The guy could be pardoned for a slow burn. But the girl shouldn't be pardoned, although nine times out of 10 she will be. Females simply aren't expected to know much about cars and therefore rarely pursue knowledge of them.

"Men tend to resent women who know too much about traditionally male subjects, such as cars," one girl said.

"Smart girls sometimes MUST play dumb," says another.

"Wrong," says Mrs. Mae Harper, for 35 years an expert auto mechanic. She and her husband run the Harper Automotive Service in Los Angeles, Calif.

"For one thing, if women knew more about the cars they drive they would save themselves a lot of beauty parlor money. When I tell other women this, they start to listen. Hit a woman in the pocketbook and it hurts."

"They go into a service garage and say 'fix it.' A mechanic will have to charge her more because he's got to spend more time finding the trouble.

Friday, November 4, 1966

"Or a woman will say, 'I think something's wrong with the transmission,' only to find it's some sort of engine trouble. Even an expert mechanic has to have some idea of where to look for trouble."

"The problem, I think, is mostly with older women. Many of the younger girls have had the advantage of driver training, where they learn more about cars and can maintain an interest in them."

What is worse, says Mrs. Harper, is that women tend to look at cars as human beings whose ills pass in time. "They know something's wrong, but they let it go, thinking it will go away."

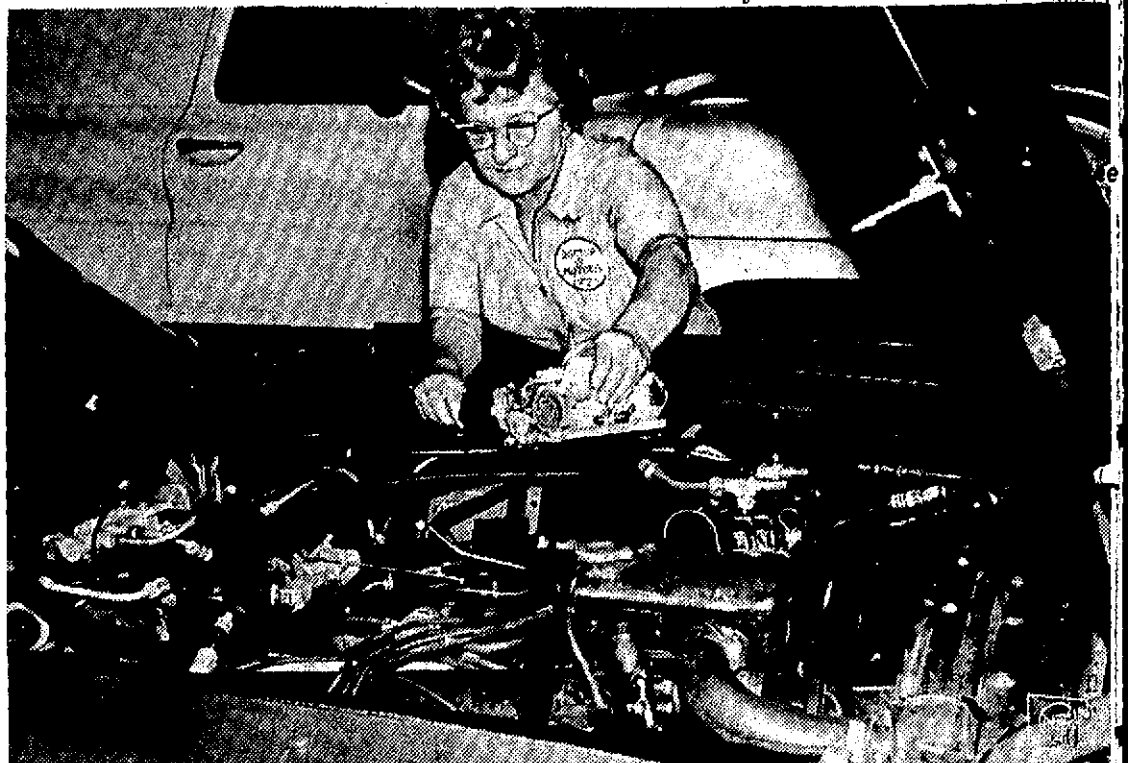

"This is very dangerous because an auto is the world's most lethal weapon. The sicker the car, the more lethal it is."

Mrs. Harper suggests that women of all ages who drive should take two hours, sit down and read a good book on auto mechanics. Or at least they should familiarize themselves with the auto manual when they (their husbands, fathers or brothers) purchase a new car.

"Another way women can learn to save money in driving is by finding out about service products—gasolines, oils, antifreeze, additives," Mrs. Harper said.

"Women tend to defeat their own purpose by buying cheap stuff when, in the long run, quality products will preserve the life of the car and save money."

"And I think any teen-ager or college girl who thinks she's hurting her chances with her boy friend by knowing about cars is not very realistic. Carburator has nothing to do with femininity."

AUTO MECHANICS nearly always is left to the man. But, says Mrs. Mae Harper, girls can get ahead of the game and save themselves money if they take the time to learn what makes a car tick.

TORTICOLLIS

By Dr. Charles Johnson

Torticollis or wryneck is a condition in which there is a tonic spasm of the muscles of the neck which rotate and flex the head and neck, may affect the sternocleidomastoid muscle, the trapezius, or other muscles of the neck and shoulders, individually or collectively. Cases of torticollis are due to cervical subluxations producing pressure upon delicate nerve tissue. The points of nerve pressure are readily detected by proper nerve test and examination.

Nerve Systems Made From Electronics

By STEPHEN M. AUG
JERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Scientists are making artificial nerve systems from electronics and discover how the nervous system works.

They are trying to make not complete nervous systems, even individual nerve cells, but lines.

There are two principal aims in this work with artificial nerves: to find out more about how the nervous system works to govern human movement, impulses and behavior.

Second, how the brain works and how man can use this knowledge.

The method of this research is called modeling — is viewed by scientists as a useful theoretical tool to supplement to actual physiological measurement — the study of the actions of nervous systems.

Scientists don't expect this knowledge to lead directly to the development of artificial parts of the human nervous system for replacement in the body. Rather, it is intended only to help the knowledge of how the nervous system works.

The problem of determining the human brain functions is enormous. There are at least 100 billion nerve cells in the brain, each is further complicated by the billions of connections.

Says Leon D. Harmon, a physicist who has been working on the problem for nearly a decade, "10 billion is a conservative estimate. An electronic computer at Bell Telephone Laboratories, Harmon specializes in neural modeling — building electronic models of nervous systems and out more about how the nervous system works.

Harmon points out that while the nervous system is similar to some electronic models of nerves, the human brain is much more complex. There are many important differences.

Nervous systems work far more than computers. Nervous systems compensate by doing things with great logical depth, which we still know little in about how brains function.

Harmon says, it seems that their detailed operations differ widely from those of computers.

The computer memory systems are one example.

When a computer works on a problem, it must be told specifically how to search its memory for bits of information. Once the instructions are correctly followed, the computer recalls the information infallibly from the record.

Now often do people feel that they are "on the tip of my tongue" — yet cannot recall it at the moment, only to have it pop into the mind when not looking for it, Harmon notes. Evidently the storage capacity of the human mind is vast, but the method of recall cannot be — or has not

PREPARING FOR PARADISE

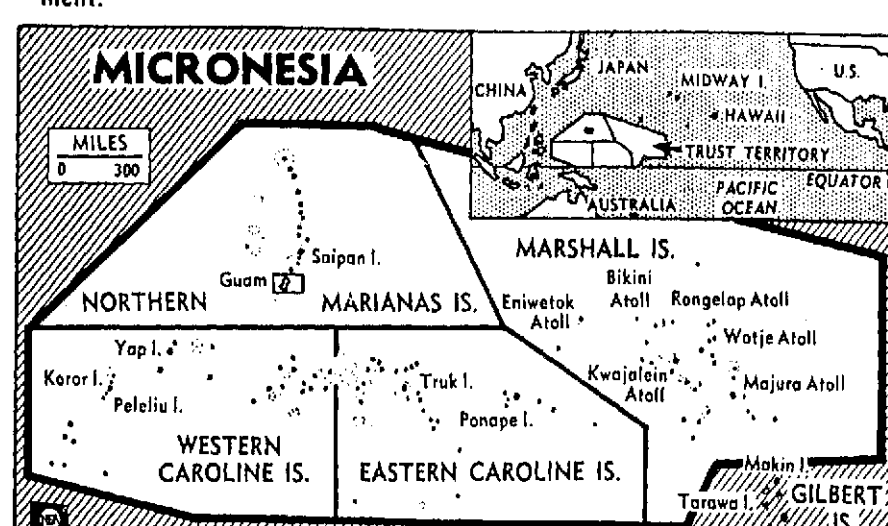

It looks like the real thing. Key West was chosen as the training site for the Micronesian project because of the similar tropical environment.

The Peace Corps is on its way to a forgotten paradise. In a crash program to make up for years of neglect, hundreds of young American volunteers are on their way to Micronesia, the string of Pacific islands and atolls taken from Japan after World War II and administered by the United States under a United Nations trusteeship. Their mission: To lift paradise out of poverty. Their preparation: A 12-week cram course in "island skills" in a tropical setting half a world away, at Key West, Fla.

Fishing with spears and nets is part of the training course—and also fun.

Indoor classes, right, include long hours with electronic headsets to learn the eight different Micronesian languages for which there are no textbooks.

The 97 inhabited islands and atolls of Micronesia, left, stretch across an area of the western Pacific almost as large as the continental United States. The population is about 90,000. The Marshall, Mariana and Caroline islands (white area) are administered by the United States. Britain governs the Gilbert and Ellice islands.

A sun-tanned Peace Corps volunteer at Key West learns to husk coconuts, one of the skills necessary for life on the remote islands of Micronesia.

Old Coaches Take Children on Trips

By FRANCESCO MENNELLA DOMODOSSOLA, Italy (AP) — Six old railway coaches that aren't ever going anywhere again are taking hundreds of Italian children on a trip toward health.

The old coaches, now called "The Train of Hopes," ended up here, high in the Alps near the Swiss frontier, 12 miles from the nearest railway line.

They have been refitted as bedrooms and dining rooms; repainted, and put into use as a vacation resort and mountain health center for the children of Italians working in Switzerland.

Father Michelangelo, a bushy-bearded, brown-robed Capuchin friar, is the man who thought up the idea and had the faith to see it accomplished.

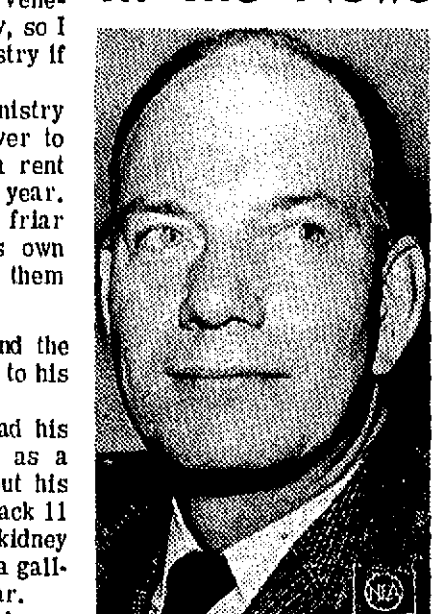

"We needed a place high up in the mountains," he said, "where the children could breathe fresh air and live a health life in the open."

"I heard about the six old coaches which were about to be scrapped at Castelfranco Veneto, hundreds of miles away, so I asked the Transport Ministry if we could have them."

The Transport Ministry turned the old coaches over to Father Michelangelo for a rent of six lire — one cent — a year. But the ministry said the friar would have to make his own arrangements for getting them up into the mountains. "Indeed," Father Michelangelo said, "that was the most difficult part. It cost us $1,200. Even so, it looked like an impossible venture to drag the heavy coaches over the mountains and through narrow passes." But Father Michelangelo believed that faith could move mountains. And he says it did. Donors gave the money to cover the cost. The old coaches made their last trip on rails across northern Italy and up the Simplon line to within 12 miles of the high valley where Father Michelangelo wanted them. They were hauled by tractor the rest of the way while volunteer workmen and mountaineers cut down trees and blasted a way through rocks. The first children were housed there this fall, coming in on a rotation basis for a month at a time. And Father Michelangelo thinks he can keep the place going through the winter, too. "There'll be a heating problem," he said. "But I'm sure that with faith — and a bit of help — we will be able to solve that too."

Johnson Took Chances on Asian Trip

By JAMES MARLOW

AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the morning of the day of his death President John F. Kennedy remarked it would be easy for anyone to shoot a president.

If it's easy for that to happen here, as it did, despite all this government's precautions, it would have been a cinch on President Johnson's just-finished trip to seven Asian and Pacific nations. Millions turned out to see and greet him, making any hope of thorough precautions impossible and ridiculous, particularly when Johnson leaped out of his bullet-proof car to mingle with the crowds.

Side by side with the obvious questions about his trip — what did it accomplish? — is the other, equally important and pertinent one: Was the trip worth the risk?

When he returned Wednesday night Johnson said "every hour and every mile was worth it." But he also added that there were no new treaties signed on the trip and he made no new commitments.

This means then that the accomplishments, whatever they were, were intangibles. But the risk was always real.

No doubt Johnson created fresh goodwill for this country in the places he visited, if only because he used that much time and effort out of his busy life to go there.

But, so far as can be seen, there was no need at all for creating more goodwill, when the risks involved are remembered, although Johnson himself is probably the only one who can say for sure whether the trips were necessary.

He did mention Wednesday night that "solid unity" was achieved at his Manila conference with the leaders of six other nations. If so, that's probably all that was achieved there.

The peace proposals which the conference made to North Viet Nam were ridiculed by the Communists. There is nothing to show the conference brought peace one step nearer.

The memory of Kennedy's assassination does not seem to have made Johnson any more cautious about exposing himself to danger, either in this country or abroad. He has taken a lot of chances both places.

If he had been shot or killed on this trip there would have been hand-wringing and soul-searching and suggestions that all future presidents must be more careful.

All these factors add to the hazards for a president on the loose. It seems reasonable to believe Johnson owes it to himself and the country to avoid any unnecessary risks of assassination.

By the same reasoning Johnson owes it to himself and the country not to be a party to his own self-destruction.

Johnson, 58 now, has had his own physical experience as a warning to be careful about his health. He had a heart attack 11 years ago. He has had kidney stones for years. He had a gall-bladder operation last year.

He's overweight. And on much of this trip he was reported to be suffering from a cold and sore throat. It was a back-breaking, grinding trip. Carelessness about his health can have the same effect as an assassin's bullet.

HERE'S WHY WE'RE FOR WIN ROCKEFELLER!

We have compared Win Rockefeller with his opponent. That's why we want Rockefeller. He can bring us more jobs, better schools, and help get us out of the dust on our rural roads. We believe that Rockefeller understands the needs of our young people . . . We believe he is concerned about the well-being of our old folks, too. Most of all, we believe Rockefeller will bring us stability. He is a true and true leader. That's why voters across our county are saying: "Rockefeller is the man we want to be our Governor!"

for Mosquitoes

A Shreveport Times report this morning from that city's Health Unit suggested a similar news story from Hope officials--to the effect that the coming of cold weather spells the end of the mosquito hazard.

There was a time when mosquitoes plagued every city, but organized war against them with modern machines and sprays and efficient manpower has vastly reduced their threat today.

According to the Shreveport report, the fogging crews start their anti-mosquito campaign March 15 and run through until the first freeze in fall--working seven days a week from 4 a.m. to 8 p.m. when heavy rains require it.

L.V. Christenson, Shreveport's pest control supervisor, estimates his men have driven 31,082 miles in city and parish the past season--a graphic example of what lengths a progressive city will go to in order to protect its citizens' health and comfort.

I was first impressed with the anti-mosquito story back in the early 1920's at El Dorado. Missouri Pacific Railroad sent a demonstration team into the chaotic oil-boom town and "sold" the city government on a pest-control program that has been in effect ever since.

At that time I learned the nature of the mosquito menace. I learned, for instance, that the average mosquito's flight range is less than a mile, and if you are bothered by the pest it's a 100-to-1 bet that it originates right on your own premises. The great offender back yonder was the household ice-box whose dripping drain created pools of water for mosquitoes to breed in. That hazard has been eliminated, of course, as the ice-box gave way to electric refrigeration. And citizens now know enough to keep empty tin cans under cover, or perforate them if left in the open, so water can't collect.

But the El Dorado demonstration also provided my first observation of the special treatment given creeks and ditches, which is now universal practice in cities.

I also recall one amusing incident. One summer El Dorado, with all its precautions against a mosquito infestation, was overwhelmed by swarms that came in from the wasteoil flats in Loutre Bottoms several miles south of the city. Mosquitoes have a normal range of less than a mile, but on that particular summer high winds from the south greatly increased their range. And so the city-county crews had to go beyond duty's call and treat the distant Loutre Bottoms also.

You have the same condition in Florida with the salt-water mosquito, whose bite is free of malaria but exceedingly painful. Ordinarily local control measures are sufficient, but every now and then high winds from the Everglades send unpleasant delegations into the cities--Miami, in one direction, or Sarasota, in the other direction. And spraying the thousands of acres of the Everglades is of course beyond the power of present-day men.

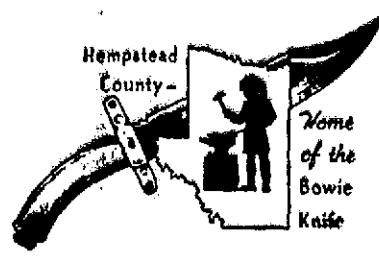

But 99 per cent of the time present pest-control methods are effective--thanks to progressive government and some hard-working sanitation crews.

32 Deaths

A crippling snowstorm, which left a heavy blanket of white across broad areas in the eastern half of the nation, appeared tapering off today but cold weather persisted, even in the Deep South.

The first widespread major snowstorm of the season left as much as 15 inches of snow in parts of Kentucky and the snow fell southward as far as Birmingham, Ala.

Storm-related deaths, including five in a heavy rainstorm in New England, totaled at least 32 in six states. Most of the fatalities were in traffic accidents on snow-covered and icy highways but some deaths were caused by heart attacks while shoveling snow.

Snow squalls and high winds continued early today in the upper and eastern Great Lakes region. Heaviest snow was confined to a narrow belt along the southeastern shores of Lake Erie. In New York State up to seven inches of snow fell north of Buffalo.

High winds, with three inches of wet snow and thunder and lightning, hit areas in western New York State Thursday night. Power breakdowns were widespread.

Gale force winds, from 35 to 45 mph., continued to sweep across the Great Lakes region. More snow fell in Michigan, but tapered off to mostly flurries during the early morning.

The two-day storm brought snow amounts of four to eight inches and drifts to three to four feet or higher, in Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, Tennessee and nearby states. Lesser amounts fell in other parts of the Midwest.

The storm appeared heading into southeastern Canada but snow squalls were indicated during the day in the northern third of the nation from the Rockies to New England. Severe cold and high winds curtailed clearing snowbound roads in western Ohio. Many schools remained closed.

Biting cold stung southeastern areas. Temperatures dropped to the 20s in interior sections of Alabama and Mississippi and to the 30s southward as far as central Florida. The mercury dipped to 24 at Atlanta early today, a record low for Nov. 4.

Heavy rainstorms hit New England. Five inches of rain drenched some areas and Boston was doused with nearly two inches as was Millinocket, Maine.

In contrast to the wintry weather, mild weather continued in the Far West, with temperatures again reaching the 80s in the Southwest.

TOWSON, Md. (AP) - The Maryland youngster who collects the most "I voted today" cards from registered voters after Maryland's election Tuesday will win a prize.

A group of Goucher College students, led by the presidents of the female college's Young Democrats Club and Young Republican Club, launched the drive Thursday in an effort to increase voting.

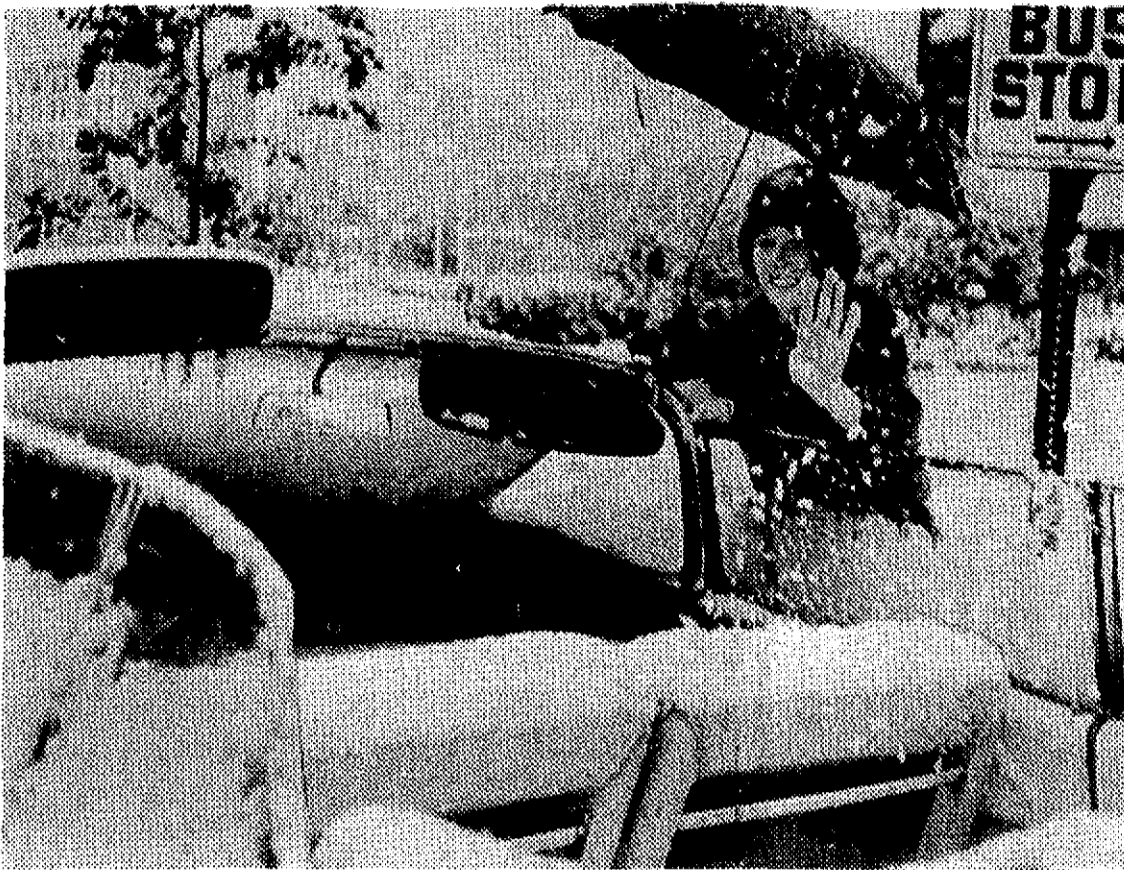

Renee Bonyong of Warren, Conn., of the Young Republicans; and Eleanor Littman of the Young Democrats, said voters will sign the cards and names will be checked against registration rolls.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - An executive of the accounting firm that handles Winthrop Rockefeller's accounts said Thursday that the disappearance of two of the Republican gubernatorial candidates' financial documents was an "unprecedented theft of confidential client material."

Walter E. Hanson of New York, senior partner in Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. of New York, told a news conference the firm would "prosecute anyone who misuses this material in the days ahead."

"We are concerned with the ultimate misuse of the material," he said. "We are very concerned how it will be used."

Hanson would not speculate on how the documents might be used.

The two--a copy of Rockefeller's tax return and an audit of his business enterprises--were discovered missing Tuesday afternoon from the Rockefeller files in the firm's Little Rock office.

Hanson said the disappearance "obviously is a police matter" and he didn't want to say anything that would jeopardize the investigation.

Jim Johnson, Rockefeller's Democratic opponent in next Tuesday's general election, told reporters after a rally in Arkansas County Thursday that he hoped the Republicans weren't trying to attribute the missing records to him.

He said any attempt to try to link the records to him would be "a smokescreen to divert attention away from the real issue--that Rockefeller can't administer his own affairs."

Meanwhile it was reported Thursday that Johnson's 1966 assessment statement in Faulk-

Jim Johnson, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, said Thursday night his personal property has been assessed according to law, and invited Winthrop Rockefeller to produce evidence that he is doing anything wrong.

Johnson, in answering Republican charges that he and his wife were late in assessing personal property, said in a DeWitt rally, "They know that my property has been assessed according to law, and the rest of it is slurs and irresponsible innuendoes."

Johnson addressed rallies at DeWitt and Stuttgart Thursday and spoke on television. Rockefeller spent a quiet day.

Johnson said while stumping Arkansas County that he hoped the Republicans weren't trying to link Rockefeller's missing financial documents to him.

He said an attempt to do so would be "a smoke screen to divert attention away from the real issue, that Rockefeller can't administer his own affairs."

One good thing about cold weather is the disappearance of pesky and dangerous mosquitoes and this has been a busy year, according to Jewel F. (Junior) May Jr., supt. of the city Health Department.

Mr. May said the season just ended was the most costly in years. The city has a fogger and a dust sprayer which are in operation five nights a week during wet season when mosquitoes breed.

The operation starts in the Spring when mosquitoes first appear. Actually it starts before with the spraying of low, water-holding areas in the city where they breed. Some 1,200 gallons of larvicide was spread this year. Some 4,200 gallons of spray was spread by the fogging machine.

Mr. May indicated that the Department kept spraying many times when it didn't actually need to due to the outbreak of encephalitis (carried by mosquitoes) in several cities last summer. "We just didn't take any chance and kept right on spraying," he said.

The fogging crew starts out about dark and works five hours a night and it takes five nights to cover the city. The next week it's the same thing over and over.

The machine travels five miles per hour and perhaps as much as 30 miles a night. Thus in the week it covers 150 miles, or roughly around 3,450 miles a year.

The City of Hope has had a mosquito control program for years and it is possibly one of the best, if not the best in Arkansas, according to the Arkansas State Health Department.

China Told,
Don't Expect
Any ChangeBy HARRY KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson cautioned Red China today not to make "any mistake in judgment" in interpreting the results of next week's off-year election.

"I cannot conceive," he told a news conference, "that when the American people cast their votes, their decision will in any way change the government's policies" on Viet Nam.

Johnson, who had to abandon a last-minute whirlwind campaign tour because he is facing corrective surgery, said that some Republican leaders are "pulling in their horns" about the possible gains the Republicans might score in the election.

He noted in passing that Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, GOP leader of the Senate, has mentioned a figure of 75 as the possible Republican gains in the House.

The way the President saw it, the party out of power has gained an average of 40 to 50 seats in elections since 1890.

But he combatted any idea that such gains would mean any change in policy toward Viet Nam. For one thing, he noted that the presidency is not up for the voters' decision.

And when Congress votes in the coming session on Viet Nam policy, he predicted the results would be the same as in the past. He mentioned such past votes as 83 to 2 in the Senate and 410 to 5 in the House.

So, he said, "I hope the Communists will be very careful not to make any mistaken judgments."

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) - South Vietnamese militiamen, outnumbered almost 9 to 1, repelled 700 Viet Cong with the aid of armed helicopters and fighter-bombers in nearly five hours of hard fighting near the Cambodian border today, Vietnamese military spokesmen reported.

A few miles away, units of the U.S. 25th Division's 196th Light Infantry Brigade battled throughout the day to clean out a series of Communist bunkers in an area where the U.S. troops fought two jungle engagements Thursday. Heavy fighting was reported continuing tonight.

The air war went on at a quickened pace. U.S. pilots reported sighting four MIG jets northwest of Hanoi and trading fire with two of them, but neither side reported damage.

The South Vietnamese said 52 Communists were killed and five captured in their predawn battle near Tay Ninh, about 60 miles northwest of Saigon. Government losses were described as moderate, indicating a considerable number of killed or wounded.

President Out of Campaigns, Demos
Making New Plans

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) - With President Johnson taking himself off the campaign trail, Democrats in tight races from Massachusetts to California today had to scrap plans, bunting and speakers' platforms.

But they insisted they were not giving up hope.

Just what impact Johnson's absence from campaign halls, rallies and parades will have on the election Tuesday no one can say with certainty.

One unmeasurable factor was whether any sympathy for the chief executive - facing surgery after his mission to the Far East - would be reflected in votes for candidates of his Democratic party.

Another was whether any feeling of anxiety about the President's condition would be reflected in votes for Republicans.

Some political pros, like California's Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, doubt any outsider - even a President - can turn the tide of an election.

And some of the candidates who have been pictured, as on, or near, the ropes and urgently needing help from the Democratic camp say they will do all right on their own.

Brown, had expected Johnson to campaign for him in California Saturday and Sunday in his uphill re-election battle against Ronald Reagan.

"We are going to win the election whether he comes or not," declared Democratic Rep. Robert B. Duncan, who is in a tough match with GOP Gov. Mark O. Hatfield for a U.S. Senate seat from Oregon.

Brown and House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts said they had been notified Tuesday that Johnson would not be able to keep campaign dates in their states. McCormack said he learned it from a White House aide who telephoned from Seoul, Korea.

But in general the picture was one of shattered plans in some dozen states after the President's announcement Thursday he would sit out the remainder of the campaign to rest up for surgery on about 15 days.

The White House never made official announcement of Johnson's campaign plans. But the word had spread from Bangkok to Boston that he planned a lightning drive to answer candidates' calls for help after he returned from the Far East.

Speakers' platforms were hammered together in Boston, in Portland, Ore., and in Minneapolis. A dam dedication was set in Montana Saturday with three floors of the Northern Hotel in Billings reserved for the President and entourage.

Advance Secret Service men were already on hand in Portland.

President to Undergo Surgery

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson faces surgery shortly before Thanksgiving, to remove a small growth from his throat and repair a painful defect in the year-old scar left by his gall bladder operation.

Doctors say his general health is excellent and there is no indication of any serious problem in relation to the surgery.

Today, Johnson heads for his Texas ranch to begin a two-week rest on doctors' orders. It means the 58-year-old President will be relaxing, not campaigning, in the three days before Tuesday's state and congressional elections.

Before he flies south, Johnson holds a broadcast and televised news conference and plans to put in "a rather heavy day" at the White House, signing bills and clearing his desk of business.

The news conference is scheduled for 10 a.m. EST.

The operation, in doctors' language, is to remove a throat polyp and to correct an incisional hernia.

It is expected to take less than an hour. Johnson's physicians said the President would be hospitalized for several days.

The Columbia Broadcasting System said Johnson would enter Bethesda Naval Hospital on Nov. 21. But the White House insisted there has been no decision on where the surgery will be conducted. The naval hospital is in a Maryland suburb of the capital.

"The date has not been picked nor has the hospital been picked," Bill D. Moyers, press secretary, said Thursday night.

Johnson made his medical announcement in the White House Cabinet room Thursday. While newsmen assembled, Johnson slouched back in his chair and joked about the rigors of the Pacific mission he completed Wednesday night.

Then, matter-of-factly, he read his startling news: "Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. I wanted you to know that my doctors have recommended that I undergo surgery."

He said it will take place in 15 to 18 days.

Vice Adm. George G. Burkley, the White House physician, said there was "no indication of any serious problem" in connection with Johnson's abdomen or throat.

"And his general health continues to be excellent," Burkley said.

Surgeons removed Johnson's faulty gall bladder and a kidney stone in a two-hour, 15-minute operation on Oct. 8, 1965.

That surgery kept Johnson in Bethesda Naval Hospital for two weeks. And he spent the rest of the year recuperating at his LBJ Ranch in Texas.
